Well, the telephone calls of this nature persisted for at least 7 months. Finally, at this point very tired of Gregory, I said ?OK give him the number?. I also wondered to myself, why is this man pursuing me. Aren?t there enough women in DC??? Ken called and invited me to DC and said ?bring your friends?. So one weekend, I decided to visit. Well, the visit developed into a one year commuting relationship. During one of my weekend visits, he said ?I have something to show you?. Oh no -- here comes a copy of the Philadelphia Magazine. You can imagine my shock. All I could say was ?that?s your picture?. I then had to tell him the story of the magazine copy in the dental office. Also, I asked him if I could take the magazine back to Philadelphia, because no one was going believe this story. I am truly going to miss Ken and the good times we shared.

“ My thoughts and prayers are with Ken's family during their great loss. I would like to take some time to share an unbelievable, Guinness Book of Records worthy type story of how Ken and I first met. It was over 15 years ago. While waiting at a dental appt. to have my braces adjusted, I started looking through a Philadelphia Magazine. There he was ? in a military uniform including a hat standing in a courtroom. The picture had me mesmerized! I then said aloud ?why can't I meet a man like this?? (The story gets better now) One of my girl friends introduced me to a guy named Gregory Davis. He and I became very good friends. Gregory was living in Philadelphia for a short time and then relocated to Washington, DC for a job opportunity. I got a phone call one night from Gregory inviting me to a party (cook out) in DC. He said ?I have someone I would like you to meet?. I drove to DC with two other friends. While at the party, he introduced me to guess who???? Needless to say, I did not recognize him at all. I then told Gregory, ?I don't like your friend?. What a great party!!! Several weeks had past, I get a telephone call from Gregory (in a laughing tone) saying ?Rhonda, Ken is asking for your telephone number?. I replied, ?I'm not interested?. (Continued)
